Provincial Parks Have Share of 'Spoilers'

Toronto — The majority of visitors to Ontario's provincial parks enjoy the scenery offered and respect the property and landscape as something to enjoy and not to destroy. However, there are a minority who delight in vandals and spoil the pleasure of others. If you see any form of vandalism taking place in the provincial parks should be reported to the staff on duty.

Here is a list of the more common forms of vandalism found by parks' staff throughout the province.

1. LITTERBAGS scatter refuse, and indiscriminately toss away bottles and cans.
2. BREAKERS invade storehouses, break windows, break grates, fireplaces, glass, fixtures, trees, monuments, signs, hardware and other property.
3. REMOVERS devise clever methods to remove signs or dismantle tables, equipment and shelters.

4. CUTTERS cut flowers, trees, shrubs, water hoses, trees, and powerlines. They defoliate benches, tables, walls, fences, signs and monuments.
5. FIREBURNERS set grass and forest fires, sometimes they burn up equipment and facilities.
6. PLOUGHERS led in plugging drains and toilets, put sand, gravel, sticks and gum in drains.

Other vandals devise ways to injure animals. Drive intricate tire designs into soft lawns, and dig holes in lawns.

FATHER REMEMBERS WHEN

AUGUST 21, 1939

Coloured lights disgraced the coloured light of the street, installed by the businessmen of the street, have not been turned on since Thursday. If chairman of Police, Deputy-Reeve I. E. Baker, has his way, they won't be turned on again until they are fixed, this is, until the burned out bulbs have been replaced.

A committee was formed at the last meeting of the council and was given power to act in the matter of fixing the string of coloured lights and their job has been delayed pending the return of W. E. Resnor, Manager of the local Hydro Commission, whose advice on the matter of types of bulbs etc., is being sought.

"The lights are a disgrace," Deputy-Reeve Baker told the Post on Monday. "They were turned off on Thursday morning and have not been turned on since. A committee was constituted to look into the matter and was given power to act but nothing has been done as yet. One thing, has only six bulbs burning and this is a disgrace. Terrible condition: blot on civilization —Magistrate."

Criticism of the manner in which some farmers treat youths entrusted to their care by various societies and criticism of the societies themselves for leaving youths "nothing to live for" was voiced by Magistrate O. A. C. of Peterboro, in Police Court here this morning.

"I think it is a terrible condition and a blot on our civilization that these youths are so treated. I know of another case which came to my attention in Peterboro where a mere boy was compelled to work from daylight to dusk, with no time for play and recreation whatever. Under such circumstances I almost feel that I ought to act the accused for stealing, rather than punishing him," said the Magistrate.

Canadian Teachers find overseas Assignments Worthwhile

Canadian teachers who served abroad under Government aid programs find their experience to be a worthwhile one. From 70 to 75 per cent of the teachers sent abroad by Canada request extension of their contracts. A number after serving in a posting abroad for several years, request another such posting. However, this, according to school year P. A. Hamilton, of Hanley, B.C., is being transferred from Nigeria to Singapore. Mr. and Mrs. Colin H. Smith, of Victoria, B.C. from Victoria to Berlin City, Nigeria; D. A. Girard, of Calgary, Alta. from Trinidad to St. George, Grenada; P. C. French, of Victoria B.C. from Ghana to Kingston, Jamaica; A. C. Carson, of Ottawa, Ont. from Nigeria to Montserrat; and H. Brochman, of Vancouver, B.C. from Ghana to Kingston, St. Vincent; D. Marantz, of Montreal, P.Q., and R. Richard of Trois Rivières, P.Q. from Congo to China.

This is how Colin and Gloria Smith, who have visited Victoria, B.C. on home leave, described their teaching assignment abroad.

"In spite of the difficulties, we can't regret that the three years we have spent in Sarawak have been the most satisfying and rewarding years of our lives in the teaching profession. Nowhere could one find more wonderful, appreciative children to work with. We are certain that this same view is held by other Canadians working in Sarawak. Our local teachers have been a constant source of enjoyment, amusement and inspiration. The local adults have been consistently interested and helpful. This is an experience which many Canadian teachers would thoroughly enjoy, and so we heartily recommend teaching assignments in developing countries for those with an intelligent, humanitarian outlook.

For us, the mutually beneficial experience, such as this, the world must eventually become a happier place in which to live. We honestly feel, we in the West have more to learn from Asia than they have to learn from us.

"Professionally, we have had to try new methods, adjust our attitudes to the uncommunicated and assist in teacher courses and syllabus making. It has meant good growth and development for us. We are extremely grateful for this experience."

Mr. Smith was principal of an experimental school in Sarawak for 300 pupils. Mrs. Smith taught English and music.

Herbert Bruch, M.L.A. who visited the Smiths at what was known to the Dayaks as the "Happy School" wrote this about their achievement.

Colin and Gloria Smith have done far more than build a school and teach classes of youngsters, many of them just out of the jungle. They have helped them to realize that there is a new order and a brighter future for them. By long hours of work, through words of encouragement, by giving a helping hand far beyond the call of duty, they have given these people the will and the desire to do something for themselves."

Spotlight on Magna Carta

Seven-hundred-and-fifty years ago today the signing of the Barons' Charter of Liberties in the town of Runnymede in England in 1215, is being celebrated in Suffolk. On a chilly November day when they took the solemn oath at the High Court of the Abbey to force King John to ratify Magna Carta.

This great historic event is to be commemorated by the Barons' Charter Society, which is holding a light opening at the end of August on the very ground between the Norman castle of the Abbey and the town of Runnymede where the medieval battle took place. It will be the first time that a story in sound and light has been told anywhere in the world of the white cloth place on just one day in history.

Definition of a Gentleman

"I regard a gentleman as someone who is fundamentally gentle. He may have to be tough, but he can be tough in a gentle way. He must be honest, polite and persuasive, and I think the idea of beauty comes into his actions and it is his morals. After all, a man's effective morality is quite often beautiful." — Professor A. N. Jeffares.

Road Slaughter Includes Wildlife

Toronto — Slaughter on the highways includes wildlife as well as human victims. Each year, speeding vehicles kill or maim many animals on Ontario roads and a large number of these deaths and injuries could be avoided were motorists more thoughtful and cautious.

Quick victims are moose which seek open breezy areas beside provincial highways to escape from bothersome insects. Standing close to road-edges at night, they are often blinded by approaching headlights and run across the highway into the path of an oncoming car.

A survey of road kills conducted by the Ontario District conservation officers, found that 245 animals were killed in the month of June as noted by the following figures:

Rabbits 124, Skunk 17, Raccoon 16, Porcupine 11, Ground Hogs 16, Deer 9, Squirrel 2, Beaver 1, Fox 2, Pheasants 5, — 245 Total.

HOLLYWOOD

by UPI guest writer IRENE RYAN

They tell me I'm pulling a lot of laughs as Granny of "The Beverly Hillsbillies," so I'm not complaining. In fact, it's exactly because I am on a winning streak at present that I think I can duck a charge of sorcery when I present my opinion that it's too funny to be a comedienne than a comedian.

It's an accepted thing for a man to be funny and to be laughed at. But, though we don't realize it, we don't accept it from a woman. Conclusion: a woman has to work harder to succeed at comedy. What I'm talking about is not just how business but basic everyday human nature. If a man can tell a joke well, we like it. If a man tells it with some vivid gyrations, we like it even better. We feel no reluctance to roar with laughter, and we admire his ability to make us do it.

On the other hand, we have an unconsciously awkward attitude toward the woman who tries to make us split our sides. We chuckle if she's witty in a casual, genteel way. That's considered part of feminine charm. But if she makes an obvious attempt to be an out-and-out clown, we find it hard to along with her because of a vague feeling that it's unlikely that women are not stupid, though to carry on that way.

That, I suspect, is because we try to bring up our own daughters from childhood to be beautiful, intelligent and charming — not comical. Most girls come to understand that being a clown isn't considered especially desirable, particularly from the romantic standpoint.

It's true that when the average guy conjures up the vision of his all American dream girl, she's not a cut-up doing double-talking and prat-fall-ing.

As a matter of fact, our most famous female comics have always been women who were extraordinarily beautiful and who played down their beauty to a great extent serving that beauty and comeliness don't mix very well. It's Minnie Mouse who gets the laughs, not Venus De Milo.

Since girls who strive for beauty don't make great comedienettes, and since most girls do strive for beauty, great comedienettes are few and far between.

For the same reason, even would-be great comedienettes are rare. Show me a good female "Youghopolite" in the entertainment business, and I'll show you a bunch of young, hopeful actresses, singers and dancers — not comedies.

For men, there is no subtle stigma in trying for the big, yuck, and not subtle stigma about getting it.

TOO CLOSE

Try this self-check to see if you follow other cars too closely in traffic. The Ontario Safety League suggests. Think back and count the times someone cut in ahead of you from another lane, last time you drove through the city, or on a crowded expressway. If you drive sensibly, several other drivers will move in ahead of you every hour. If you are squeezed in ahead, it probably means that you consistently drive dangerously close to the car you are following.

School buses remain the same

The Lindsay area High School Board was told at their meeting Wednesday that the buses in service for rural students in September will be the same as last year. Alga, De-vitt, DeNure, Scott Brothers and H. G. Williams. B. Robertson of the Transportation Committee said they would be very little change in the route.

High School Board approve Crest visit

The Lindsay area High School Board approved paying $75 to have the Crest Theatre Foundation Company stop at LCVI during its tour of Ontario Secondary Schools. A letter read at the Board meeting Wednesday, from W. R. Stewart, Deputy Minister of Education, said the company was planning a tour of Ontario High Schools, in which it will perform scenes and excerpts from plays on the curriculum as well as some of general interest. The company consists of a production staff and five actors.

Mr. Bresse told the board that the students usually have a trip to the Crest Theatre but if the players were to come here, more students would be able to see the plays.

The production will be open to students of grades 11, 12, and 13 said Mr. Bresse.

The Entertainment World

Toronto (UPI)—What does a funny man do when he isn't laughing? Johnny Wayne is one of the world's biggest hockey fans even during the sweltering months of summer. Frank Shuster plays golf as if it were going out of style.

Both are Toronto suburbanites who keep regular office jobs, play with their kids, love their wives, and even occasionally walk their dogs. Both take their lives very much for granted.

But put them before a television camera, or on a stage, and they turn into Canada's funniest funny-men.

"How does it feel to be the best comedians in show business?" Wayne and Shuster were asked during a recent lunch of corned beef and viches at Toronto's celebrity club.

"Bloody good," replied Wayne, the taller of the two. "Great," echoed Shuster, content to let his partner handle most of the chatter. "We're actually known as fairly dull fellows off the screen," Wayne added. "Our friends know how funny we really are."

Shuster nodded his agreement. Wayne told how people always ask his wife what it is like to live with a comedian, expecting of course, to hear about an existence of never-ending funny stories, wisecracks and humorous incidents. She became very exasperated he said, when people wouldn't believe he lived a very normal life.

Mrs. Wayne solved the problem by replying to the curious, "My dear, it's one laugh after another, all day." The questioners were satisfied. It was what they wanted to hear.

Just to prove how unfunny Wayne and Shuster really are, six hour-long interviews produced only two printable jokes. Offered a cigaret Wayne said, "I don't drink and I don't smoke—but like a great deal about both."

SPARK PLUGS

THE SUMMER MARKET

In the six weeks used June 30, the summer market has been trading on new car sales that in any other time of the year. This volume means that used car buyers purchasing in this blossoming market can choose from a greater variety of models, and at lower prices. The summer is also a time when it comes to the trade of maintaining a large inventory of products, in this case used cars, is very much to the dealer's interest. He can keep his supply in an economical minimum to save space and money.

It is not until the middle of the summer that dealers are preparing their inventory. In the past, the late-April reached their highest point. The summer market is a time when the dealer's inventory is at its peak. The summer market is a time when the dealer's inventory is at its peak. The summer market is a time when the dealer's inventory is at its peak.

Asked about their personal relationship with each other and if during their long career they had any serious argument, Wayne and Shuster said: "During our 30 years together we have had one argument. It lasted 30 years." The remainder of the interview was spent in a discourse on their future plans, the possibility of a thriving movie industry in Canada, and everybody's favorite subject, Toronto.

One of the main reasons for the return was to discuss their interview to the stage for the first time in 12 years. The occasion is a rare, "Wayne and Shuster in Charlotte," in the Prince Edward Hotel. They have expressed their delight at being part of the celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of the Charlotte-Toronto Conference which three years later led to the birth of Canada and indicated if the review was a success they would "explore the possibility of taking it to other Canadian cities."

A full complement of top Canadian talent will be appearing in the review as produced by Mayor Moore, who first worked with Wayne and Shuster when they were students at the University of Toronto. Among the supporting cast will be Corinne Conley, Paul Kigman, Jack Dillies, Ernie Thompson, Tom Harvey as well as dancers Don Gillies and Carli Carter. American review choreographer Jonathan Lucas is staging the musical numbers.

A highlight of the Charlotte review will come on September 1st when the audience will include Prime Minister Pearson and all the other provincial premiers. Also present will be a group of Canadian actors impersonating the original fathers of confederation.

Upcoming in the fall-winter television season for the comedy duo are four one-hour specials on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's new "Show of the week" series and six-hour film documentaries about famous comedians.

Wayne and Shuster, responsible for writing the scripts and narrating the documentaries, will turn their sights on such genres of comedy as W. C. Fields, the Marx brothers, Abbott and Costello, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, George Burns and Gracie Allan.

Negations are now underway and this unique series might also be seen by television viewers in the United States, Britain and Australia.

The comedians, encouraged by recent developments to establish a movie industry in Canada, would, of course, like to star in a feature film, but would make sure it was the "right" film.

"With the right project we would be very keen to make a movie," Wayne said. "That's what they all say," muttered Shuster.

Both performers agreed that Canada could use a movie industry and had enough creative talent, although lacking in technical ability, to make it successful.

If Canada can import football players, there's no reason why we can't import people to train us in the technical aspects of making good movies," Wayne ventured. This country, they believe, could produce both English and French-speaking films and become "one of the most important film-producing countries in the world." Although they considered it a popular pastime in Canada to be a "Toronto hater," Wayne and Shuster openly and freely admitted they were among the Toronto haters. "We probably enjoy Toronto more than anyone else," Wayne said.

Sir Sam Hughes

Lindsay, because of its association with Sir Sam Hughes has a place in history and yet the town does little to recognize the man's genius and ability. Most communities having such a famed native son would have named parks, roads and buildings after him and found ways to honour his memory. But not Lindsay.

The associations of contemporary times have distorted his weaknesses, said former premier Leslie M. Frost, in a letter to "The Post" published a few weeks ago. "And I think most unfairly. I hope that history will place in true perspective what the man was and what he accomplished when Canada, with only a few days warning, was translated into a new age with unheard of demands on a Nation which was then less than 30 years old. . . . Hughes' accomplishments stand out like mountains against his weaknesses."

"Sam" was first and last all the time a Canadian, writer Wilfred Royce in the "Legationary." "He was also an equalitarian. He put on an air of superiority. Even after he had been made a knight and made himself a major-general, a lieutenant who knew him could still call him "Sam."

Hughes' career like many another ended in a darkened sunset, but while he was in power he was a driver like Churchill.

This is the fiftieth anniversary of the outbreak of World War One, whose course continued until 1918. Lindsay at this moment is deliberating over a suitable centennial project for the town. It was suggested that whatever the project chosen be named in Sir Sam Hughes be given to it, so that the inhabitants of fifty years ago may be recognized by the work they did for the hundredth birthday of the country he served so well.

As Leslie M. Frost commented "... the mountains of his accomplishments dwarf the errors and the misunderstandings created by this impetuous, hard-driving complex personality."

Waterpipe system for Gardens

A "Do-it-yourself" waterpipe system for gardeners exhibited at the Paris Flower Show, was one of the British products reported on recently in the BBC General Overseas Service programme "New Ideas."

"The kit comprises 75 feet of half-inch plastic tubing," reported Mr. Richards, "an On-Off valve, a tap and various joints (T-joints, elbow joints and so on). There are also barrel pipes, blanking-off plugs and clips. When assembled, it provides a number of easy-plug-in water points—the pipes themselves can either be buried or left on the surface."

Assembly is quick and easy. No tools required; all tube fittings have special spring-and-cone connectors — a nut is tightened quite gently by hand and a stainless steel spring closes down on the tube and, making a leak-proof seal. — BBC London Letter.

Butlet proof

British cabaret entertainer Peter Maxwell is getting away from the grey-ground of the plushy West End of London with a 5,000-mile (12,800 km) long trip of South Africa and Rhodesia. Yet he's in a Rolls-Royce of 1931 vintage. It is bullet-proof and was formerly owned by Chicago gangster Al Capone.

Officers' Meeting
The officers of the 45th Regiment had had a most successful meeting in the armories last night when matters affecting the organization were discussed. There was a large attendance of the officers and considerable enthusiasm prevailed during the evening. Among the communications laid before the meeting was one from Colonel T. H. Duggan, Director Officer, Commanding No. 2 Division in which the command of the regiment was handed over to Major J. A. H. Fox, owing to the departure of Lieutenant-Colonel Hopkins for Valcartier with the overseas contingent.

It was decided by the officers to stimulate a greater interest in the regiment among the young men. Recruiting will be carried on daily from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. All resident members of the 45th Regiment are requested to report at the Armories during the week at above named hours. Drill and instruction will commence Tuesday evening at 8 p.m., Captain A. Williams is Command.

FATHER REMEMBERS WHEN

This Day 25 Years Ago
AUGUST 26, 1939

Child hurt, believed that 10-year-old Beverly Sloan was crying to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sloan, near Barbours, yesterday, with the blood streaming from a wound in her head, her frantic father quickly hurried her into a car and instructed his son, Victor, to drive him to the Royal Memorial Hospital.

Following this, Mr. Sloan phoned police and excitedly told them his daughter had been shot.

On arrival at the hospital, the wound in the child's head was dressed and her statement that she had fallen and cut her head on a stone post police officials took to routine work.

Bad Cuts
Lindsay merchants are warned to be on the lookout for counterfeit nickles which have been quite numerous here. Fred Hall of Lindsay brought one into the offices of The Post and it is remarkably like the piece of the actual. It was made of lead, however, and had no value. When dropped on a counter it had a dead sound instead of the ringing sound of a real coin. Others have reported similar coins.

Economics and Development Minister Stanley J. Randall (left) shows Premier John Robarts how to throw the Penguin — one of Ontario's new export products. Acting as an honour guard, members of the Old Fort Henry guard accompanied Mr. Robarts through the "Ontario Exports to the World" display at the Canadian National Exhibition. The hand vehicle is made by Penger Limited, Carleton Place, and is being exported to the U.S. Nearly 100 Ontario companies showed their wares in the special eye-catching exhibit.

A Commonwealth of 750 Million

It is election year in Great Britain. The most likely date canvassed at the present time is October 15th, but this is quite unofficial. The most likely result (again this is unofficial, but according to Britain's army of bookmakers) is that the Conservatives will get in again — by 30. They have their bets on the various national opinion polls which appear in different papers each week.

But the result of an election is more difficult to forecast than, shall we say, the sale of washing machines over the next five years. Wise old campaigners know just how wrong you can go in your forecasts.

Those in opposition have said withering words on the decline and fall of the British Empire, and they are returned to power) of the British Empire, but they have failed to take a look at a busy child called the Commonwealth which is growing up and which is going to have a loud voice in world affairs. The Commonwealth today has a population of 750 million people — nearly a quarter of the world's population. In Britain there are some 55 million and a further 33 million in Australia, Canada and New Zealand. Another 540 million live in countries which have become independent since the war. Last month (July) Malawi (Nyasaland) became independent, and later this year Northern Rhodesia will assume independence.

The strange thing about the Commonwealth is that it is a free association of very diverse sovereign states and that dependencies. There is no central administration and each has independent links with non-Commonwealth countries. But at government levels the essence of the Commonwealth relationship is close and continuous consultation. The aim is the fullest possible agreement on matters of common concern.

But Commonwealth economies are increasingly dependent on world commodities, a point which is not raised by the Commonwealth members when they meet in London, the mother capital. Over two-thirds of total Commonwealth exports go to non-Commonwealth markets.

In 1963 Britain sent 29 per cent of its exports, valued at $1,100 million, to other Commonwealth countries and took 32 per cent from the Commonwealth. In the way of imports, the rest of Britain's export trade is divided between the European Economic Community, the European Free Trade Area, U.S.A. with the rest of the world representing about the same amount. Commonwealth wealth side of exports from the U.K.

Britain's aid to Commonwealth runs at $44,580,000 in government-owned help, while new private investment between 1959 and 1962 averaged $2,681,000,000 a year. £200 million of which went in the developing Commonwealth. — A London Letter.

Summer safety tips from St. John

Some people can get work unprotected in poison by patches for years without ill effects. Others develop severe cases of poison by "dermatitis" from the slightest contact with the plant. But no one is completely immune to its toxic sap, and the old wives' tale about eating a few leaves in the early spring to build up a resistance to it could be disastrous.

St. John Ambulance claims the only real immunity is avoiding all contact with the noxious weed — which may not be as easy as it sounds. Growing everywhere in the Dominion except Newfoundland, it can adapt itself to almost any soil from beach sand to garden loam and it changes appearance with the season and location so that recognition is always difficult.

Sometimes the leaves are smooth and sometimes toothed, sometimes they are green and sometimes brownish-sometimes shiny, sometimes dull. The berries may be greenish-yellow, white and waxy, or brownish in colour. It can take the shape of a dwarf, shrubby plant or a long creeping vine. In fact, the only really consistent thing about it is that each of its leaves has three leaflets.

Every part of the plant — its leaves, stems, flowers, fruits, and roots — contains toxic juices which can cause anything from a mild rash to acute distress and sickness. This sap does not evaporate and can be transmitted on the fur of animals, tools or picnic outfits, or in droplets in the smoke of burning twigs.

The first sign of contact with the poisonous juices is a mild itching, followed by a slight bluish or pinkish skin. As the itching sensation increases, water blisters begin to develop to become very itchy, and soon from pin-point sizes to oozing sores.

St. John recommends treating mild cases of poison ivy dermatitis by washing affected areas in soap and warm water, then applying rubbing alcohol and calamine lotion. Only if severe blisters should never be used as they are likely to dissolve the toxic plant juices and spread them. To relieve intense itching, add one percent phenol to the calamine lotion.

Similar skin irritations are caused by two other, rarer plants: the poison sumac of southern Ontario and Quebec and the poison oak of southern Vancouver Island. "If you plan on cutting where any of these are suspected," says St. John, "... Change your plans."

Abstainance
To set the mind above the appetites is the end of abstinence, and one of the Fathers observes to be, not a virtue, but the groundwork of a virtue. — Johnson.

Blame
A man takes contrition and advice more easily than people think. Only he will not bear it when violently angry even though it be well founded. Hearts are flowers; they remain open to the soft-falling dew, but shut up in the violent downpour of the rain.

Pleasant Point Union Church anniversary

One hundred years ago in 1864, John Hayes bought a tract of land on Sturgeon Lake named one parcel Pleasant Point and the second section Hayes Point.

Today, Pleasant Point is one of the most popular and pleasant resorts in the district.

Sunday morning last the Union Church at the point observed the fortieth-anniversary of its foundation. The guest speaker was Rev. Gilmore Smith L.D., of Greater United Church, Peterboro and the soloist was Mrs. Marilyn Scott-Porter of Lindsay.

The Hon. Leslie M. Frost, one of the pioneers of the Union Church and active in the development of the Point was called on impromptu and outlined a brief sketch of the Church in which he gave the late Dr. Herbert Irvine credit for being the driving force behind the establishment of the little church in the Wilderness.

Among the gifts presented to the church in memory of Irvine were the plans, the hymnary and other articles. Mr. Frost as a young lawyer at the time was called on to draw up a constitution for the church, which has stood the stress and strain of years without being altered in any way, he said.

Seven people in the congregation, signified by a show of hands that they were present at the opening of the church forty-two years ago.

In referring to the history of the Point, Mr. Frost said that Mr. Hayes the original owner had two plans registered, document 123 and 143 and in the first section he set aside lakefront lots for each one of his family and cottages which are still in use were erected on lots of various sizes. The historian paid tribute to the founders of the church and those who are carrying on the work of the church.

Weekend guests with Mr. with their daughter and husband Mrs. Fred McIntosh in-band, Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren, included Mrs. Harold McIntosh, Peterborough.

A speedy recovery is the wish of her friends owing to all of Cornwall and Mr. and the illness of Miss Faye McIntosh at her home.

Menace

The pollen-bearing plants are still a menace to the hayfever sufferer who should make every endeavour to avoid them, especially the ragweed plant, which is in bloom in roadside, waste lots and even in gardens. Learning to recognize ragweed will help the sufferer on his own property. Provincial tourist departments can usually advise on the safest places for vacations, where there is a low pollen count.

Make Seat Belts a Habit

Many more people were killed and injured on the western coast a number of fatalities occurred in Lindsay and district. Whether say of those killed would have been saved had it not been for the use of a seat belt, is of course, impossible to say, however the occupant of a modern motor vehicle can be a good bet that he or she will be at any time in the history of the automobile. The cars of today contain numerous safety devices for the driver and passenger protection in the event of a crash. It is the split-second moment when the little things become important.

With a skilful, sensible driver today's motorists can for years without an accident. It is not the driver's fault to know when another driver will bring that one risk — and fail, taking that risk, the careful one. It is the split-second moment when the little things become important.

One of the little things is the seat belt. It is worth it can save a life. If it is not worn it can do nothing. Scientific research, controlled tests, have proved some 900 Canadians would stay alive each year if everybody wore seat belts. The severest injuries would be reduced by one-third, and one-third if everybody wore them.

And remember, three out of four traffic deaths occur within 15 miles of home.

Wear a seat belt even when driving to the corner store.

Law Enforcement

The scales of mob violence in a number of cities in the United States in recent weeks leads us to reflect on the subject of police — the most important of public servants.

And yet, although we criticize them, without them we would have no law and order. They are the men and women who are the backbone of the law of the land.

Anticipated by many to law enforcement officers is just one of the many officers have to contend with. Many of the public are neither against them nor for them. That is, he is for them when he is not in the line of fire, but when he gets a speeding ticket.

Police endure insults from punks and grunts, troublemakers and yet keep remarkably calm and even tempered in the face of it.

And the policeman's life is restricted in a way most of us wouldn't tolerate. He cannot drink as much as would like in his own home, he can't take part in politics and he cannot strike. He cannot join a union or display any grievance with his superiors. He can't even sue on duty or seek legal advice.

And does he get well paid for his work? He does not, but he is frequently no wonder police recruits are hard to get. Who wants to be a servant of a critical public, and risk one's life for less money than an intelligent man can earn in almost any other job. No wonder the Ontario Provincial Police are short of men.

Soil testing goes modern

The biggest obstacle in soil testing has been the great volume of paper work involved. Last year about 50,000 soil samples were analyzed by the Soil Department at the O.A.C., Guelph, says Professor T. J. Heag.

In interpreting this data, the farmer has to make a lot of mistakes. The farmer has to make a lot of mistakes. The farmer has to make a lot of mistakes. The farmer has to make a lot of mistakes.

The Uniforms and Units of The Fort Henry Guard

The Fort Henry Guard comprises three basic units: artillery, infantry and life and drum corps. Each Guardsmen is trained to participate in all three units.

The uniforms worn by the Guard are authentic replicas of those worn by British Infantry Regiments of the Line and the Royal Artillery in 1847, the date of Canada's Confederation. The only difference in the badges and insignia is the replacement of the Union Jack by the Canadian flag.

The Truth About Sunglasses

Sunglasses can protect against discomfort, but... no commercial sunglasses completely eliminates glare, and no commercial sunglasses can be used in the sun.

Much misinformation has been published on the use of sunglasses for protection against glare and ultra-violet rays.

Sunglasses are not required to protect the eyes from ultraviolet rays or exposure to sunlight. Eyes are not damaged by sunlight unless staring at the sun. Sunglasses are not a protection against discomfort produced by high intensity illumination. If no discomfort is experienced in sunlight there is no need for sunglasses.

Two classes of people experience discomfort in sunlight: those who have actual eye ailments or whose eyes are unusually sensitive to light. The group with eye ailments should obviously be protected by sunglasses. The second group with no disease can obtain glasses with properly equipped filters.

Individuals who wear sunglasses for cosmetic reasons should only in bright light, and not at other times because they reduce eye tolerance to bright light when they are not driving and working outdoors in bright sunlight, but not indoors, unless under artificial light.

Ontario Snakes on view at C.N.E. in Lands and Forests exhibit

Toronto — There will be no danger of snake-bite as thousands view a collection of snakes common to Ontario at the C.N.E. this year. A comprehensive view of the various species will be a feature of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests exhibit in the great open air of the Ontario Government Building.

Many of the snakes are harmless because the snakes have been cleverly reproduced in full colour in latex and mounted on a background of natural life. The exhibit is a must to see and study.

There are 18 varieties in Ontario only the Massasauga rattlesnake is venomous. Stout and 2 1/2 feet long. It is fairly common in the Bruce Peninsula and along the shores of Georgian Bay and there are isolated records of its occurrence along the shoreline of Lakes Huron and Ontario. Although its venom is powerful the quality is not great, but prompt medical attention is advised if bitten.

Though many of the other snakes will bite, they lack fangs and venom and are harmless to man. They are small pit vipers, their teeth are short and penetration is not serious. However, to prevent common infections, it is advised not to handle them.

Regardless of the common beliefs about rattlesnakes, rattlesnakes and scorpions are harmless and used merely as a "teaser" to attract the public.

Scorpions are not, slimy, a milk snake does not suck milk from cows. The scorpion is about 1 1/2 inches long and is not poisonous, and there is no scientific proof that snakes swallow their own tails.

Here are some of the common snakes and how to identify them:

Ring-necked snakes — All black or slate-colored above; distinct yellow-orange collar around neck; belly yellowish.

Smoother green snakes (grass snakes) — Green above; lighter on belly.

Brown snakes (black snakes) — Brown above; belly pinkish or light brown; narrow light stripe down back.

Black snakes (black snakes) — Solid black or blackish above; belly red.

Carter snakes — Three yellowish stripes, one down back and one on each side; belly white or light brown; narrow light stripe down back.

Water snakes (black water snakes) — Variable in colour; may be brown, black or white; with light brown pattern from side to side; belly white or yellowish.

Deft, old and Forests.

Large Snakes

Black snakes (womper) — Brownish yellow above; black below; black and white checkered appearance on belly.

Black snakes — Our largest snake, which has a recorded length of eight feet; uniform black above; belly white; with light brown pattern from side to side; belly white or yellowish.

STOP!... killing yourself

By Peter J. Steinhorn, MD., F.A.C.P.

SMOKING MAKES SENSE ONLY IN PERSPECTIVE

What's the best way to give up smoking?

I wish I knew the answer. The first thing to remember is that what will work for one may not for another. Any habit is at the mercy of strong motivation.

If you feel deeply enough for any certain reason, that you want to stop smoking, you will. If you don't, you won't. You'll scrape up every excuse from the bottom of the barrel to convince yourself why it's silly to stop. "Life is short, you may as well enjoy it, etc." (Other a darn good excuse.)

But if securely motivated, you can break the habit just as easily as snapping your fingers. For example, if your doctor says you take the time to paint a picture of deadly danger for you and you continue to smoke most doctors have been implying that while in the later stages of cancer, you are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe.

You will bring up all kinds of excuses: that you've smoked for so many years it would be too great a shock to stop suddenly (or gradually); that it calms your nerves; that you've cut down a lot lately, anyhow. But you're only fooling yourself.

I am not saying that everyone should give up cigarettes. Nor am I saying that they should switch to cigars. I'm not so sure of the cause of all the trouble to be able to tell you that you can smoke pipe or cigars with abandon. Why cigarettes have been made the villain I can't understand. Cancer of the mouth, tongue, lips and throat are still with us, in spite of all the concentration on cancer of the lungs as the enemy. And we know that cigars and pipes will be tied up in some way with mouth and throat cancer. My impression is that and you continue to smoke most doctors have been implying that while in the later stages of cancer, you are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe.

For example, if your doctor says you take the time to paint a picture of deadly danger for you and you continue to smoke most doctors have been implying that while in the later stages of cancer, you are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe. You are not far from breaking your pipe.

I was saying that if you have to sufficient motivation you can stop. If I can convince you that your bronchitis will never improve if you continue to smoke, you will stop without trouble—if you have any sense.

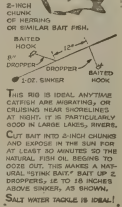

The same is true if you have an ulcer, or coronary disease, or asthma, or emphysema, or an allergy to tobacco. If I tell you those will worsen if you still smoke, you will quit. And the quitting will be easy because you are motivated to get well.

However, if you are like the many thousands who are the heroes and heroines of my book "How To Stop Killing Yourself" (which apparently normal people go on doing the things which surely will kill them early), you aren't sufficiently motivated to stop. You'll keep on.

How about people in their 70's and over, apparently healthy? Shall they stop smoking? Well, as I've said here pages before, I don't believe in changing signals in the elderly even if the habits may be exceptions. They deserve the remaining years.

HOW CAN I TALK?

By Anne Atty

Q. Is there anything I can do about old candelabra or other cluttered objects which have become too bulky for further polishing?

A. A painted glass item with refrigerator enamel will give them a new appearance. The resultant hard, smooth and glossy looks much like a porcelain finish, and is very easy to keep clean.

Q. What is a good "home-made" polish for linoleum?

A. A mixture of equal parts of white kerosene, turpentine and thick, warm soapuds makes a fine polish for linoleum. It preserves the finish of the linoleum, and makes it resistant to soiling.

B. How can I clean pearls?

A. Put a little olive oil on a piece of chamom, then rub this over the pearls gently.

Three Brock High students gain "Ontario Scholar" honour

The Grade 12 results from the Brock District High School show three students deserve special mention for the marks they received. Marilyn Morgan daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Morgan of Cammington received "first" and had an average of 87% on papers. Dolbecker of Cammington received "first" in nine papers for which she received a "first" in classification as an "Ontario Scholar" and will receive $400. from the Ontario Government. Charles Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Graham of Cammington received five "firsts", scored in three mathematics and two science papers.

It is expected that each of these students, as well as other students, will receive additional scholarships through University awards.

FUN Afloat
ON LAKE PERIE
TRIM BOAT FOR BEST PERFORMANCE

Running an outboard boat with its bow high out of the water may look easy, but it doesn't do much in gaining the respect of other boaters. Besides being unsafe, it is usually an indication that the operator knows little about proper boat handling. In this situation, the driver's forward vision is obstructed almost completely by the bottom of the boat. Each time the boat hits a wave, it will slap the water and a very rough ride will be the result. Because that, speed and fuel efficiency are cut down miserably.

There are two ways to remedy the problem, according to the engineers at Evinrude Motors. One involves changing the angle setting of the motor. Most outboards are designed so that they can be tilted either forward or away from the boat. When the motor is set in closer toward the transom, if the boat speeds, more the motor away from the transom.

A boat may also be trimmed by distributing the load more evenly. In a small two-man fishing boat, for example, the passenger should sit well forward from the driver. If only one person, the driver, is aboard, the boat can be trimmed by placing the fuel tank, a lead bag or some heavy piece of gear toward the bow. But don't overdo it. Having too much weight toward the bow will make steering difficult.

Especially in a small boat, caution passengers to keep to the center of the boat. Changing seats should be allowed only after the boat has been stopped. Under no circumstances should passengers be allowed to sit on the gunwale or deck when the boat is under way.

By keeping your boat balanced and riding level, you will get better performance, a safer and smoother ride and the approval of other boaters.

THE MAN FROM GALVESTON
Jeffrey Hunter, Frances Gifford
Curtain — "How to Satisfy Your Heart"

Women's World

By Gay Pauley
New York (UPI) — In Belgium, the secretary calls her boss "mister". In the United States, like and no, she calls him "Mac."

This informal relationship is the most striking difference in the social customs of the two countries that Gisle Vanderputen found on a three-week visit to the United States.

"In Europe a woman never address the boss by his first name," said Miss Vanderputen. "Nor would he address us as anything other than Miss whatever the last name is. You're more formal."

Miss Vanderputen came to the United States for her first visit as part of her reward for being named "the best secretary of Belgium."

The 32-year-old blonde Miss Vanderputen is not only a good secretary but a good sense of organization and initiative, a good manager, an expert in the use of the telephone, a good technical skills in addition to shorthand and typing such as knowledge of foreign languages. Miss Vanderputen speaks Flemish, French, Dutch and German, and a secretary who would be herself and not be overvalued by her surroundings.

Grooming and personal appearance were way down on the boss list, she said. Miss Vanderputen visited offices and talked with other secretaries in New York, Boston, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee. She found that on each side of the Atlantic, most Belgian secretaries work a 40-hour week, although she is a member of the Belgian Secretaries' Association for Rene Fox, Manager of External Affairs in Euronorm, Market, doesn't always keep that limit.

Secretaries in Belgium have their coffee breaks. And their salaries average pretty much the same when you consider what a U.S. dollar compared with a Belgian Franc will buy, she said.

Salaries range from 8,000 to 13,000 Francs or $180 to $260 per month, she said. If that sounds small, remember, she said, the U.S. way of life is just more expensive.

Belgian secretaries usually get three weeks vacation which she said "I believe more than your secretaries average."

Miss Vanderputen lives with her mother and brother at Neuberger, outside Brussels. She also has a residence near her job in Brussels.

George Archer leads field in $200,000 golf tournament

George Archer is the man to come home with scores of 69, catch as the 200-thousand-dollar. To share third place, no less than 10 World Open Golf Tournaments—then 10 players were another merit swing into the second stroke back at even-par 70, round today at Birmingham. They included—Arnold Palmer, Michigan, Archer smashed Billy Casper, Don January, the course record yesterday Dave Hill, Ed Furgol, Bob Hope, Bruce Devlin and Australia. The next Jack Nicklaus was eighth under-par 65 to take a three-stroke lead, Joe Campbell and Claude West were runners-up. Archer's 69 was a 73 break par two. Dick Sikors and U.S. Open Champ Ken Venturi and Jack Burke, as they both had had a 74.

In Canadian Football League, New York, against two-time action... one game last night champion Monterrey, Mexico. The Hamilton Tiger-Cats of St. Catharines, Ontario, defeated the Alouettes at home championship round by beating Tachikawa, Japan, yesterday. While Monterrey eliminated the way the Cats exploded in the second half and the Hawks saw their three-point winning streak rudely ended. Former New York Giant Johnny Collins scored two touchdowns from Bobby Kuntz and Falmey himself. With Bernie Falter, Kuntz added four converts... a field goal... and one single. For the Larks Gene Beretta got a fourth quarter single.
